

6/30/109

Key West Tropical Forest & Botanical Garden is alive again

Fighting back against hurricane devastation, the tall, pristine forest thrives again.

(PressMethod) - Carolann Sharkey, chairwoman of directors, raised the dead here, turning overgrowth into a community learning center and a research gold mine. And more growth is on the way.

Future Plans include bird and reptile wetland sanctuaries; meeting spaces and stages; research and education centers; a children area and more.

Key West Florida July 1st, 2009, Tina Masters, Key West residential sales specialist and Top producing REALTOR for Coldwell Banker Schmitt, remarked, this is more great news about preserving our beautiful environment. This proves, that we are serious about saving what a beautiful place Key West is and what a great place to live.

When asked how this could affect Key West Real Estate Tina remarked-Key West is all about our environment-so preserving it definitely helps both residents, future residents and tourists. In addition, this will provide jobs and bring more people into our beautiful area.

Where you live affects how you live.

About Tina Masters. Tina is the owner of a Key West real Estate website located at www.yourkeywestagent.com designed specifically to help people relocating to Key West and the lower Florida Keys.

CONTACT INFORMATION

Tina Masters

Coldwell Banker Schmitt

Email Us

305-292-7440

<http://www.yourkeywestagent.com>